Stuart Franklin/Getty ImagesAfter a long morning of Black Friday shopping, it's time to settle in for Capital One's The Match, the much anticipated, head-to-head showdown between golfing legends Tiger Woods and Phil Mickelson. Below, we'll break down all the information about the matchup, from how to watch the spectacle to the format for the event.Event InformationWhen: Friday, Nov. 23 at 3 p.m. ETWhere: Shadow Creek Golf Course in Las Vegas, NVWatch: B/R Live, DirectTV, AT&T U-verse and other pay-per-view optionsCost: $19.99.Format: Match play. Unlike stroke play, where the overall score is tallied, match play only tallies the number of holes a player wins. So for example, if Mickelson has a better score on the first hole, he'll lead the match 1-0, but if Woods has the better score on the second hole the match will be knotted at 1-1.Prize: A winner-take-all, $9 million purse. Woods and Mickelson will also make side bets throughout the contest, with those winnings going to a charity chosen by the players.Odds: Woods (1-2) is the favorite and Mickelson (17-10) the underdog.It's probably a stretch to suggest Woods and Mickelson have always been peers—in his prime, Woods had no peer—but they've been two of the game's top stars and most marketable personalities throughout their careers.Bleacher Report @BleacherReportPhenoms. Champions. Legends. Rivals. #TigersvsPhil Mickelson has been willing to recognize Woods' impact on the game, albeit in a tongue-in-cheek way."Tiger's grown the game and I've benefited more than anyone," he said during the HBO's 24/7 (ht Golf.com). "If I were to lose this $9 million—which I won't, but if I were to lose—I would almost feel I owed it to him and we would both be winners in this situation."HBO @HBO"I know it would bother @TigerWoods." @PhilMickelson explains how a chance encounter with quarterback @TonyRomo helped him gain a mental edge against his rival. 24/7 The Match: #TigersvsPhil premieres tonight at 10PM. that sort of banter will continue in the matchup itself. It's certainly one of the selling points, as will be the side bets throughout the event.Tiger Woods @TigerWoodsThe full episode of 24/7 The Match Tiger vs Phil is on tonight at 10pm on @HBO. Getting ready for next week, added layers to the matchup itself is enough to get some of the pair's fellow golfers excited to watch. "I'm sure that myself and our friends will be watching it," Jordan Spieth said in late October, per Pat Ralph of Golf.com. "There is certainly an interest from us, yeah, especially knowing the both of them. Having them miked up and knowing them personally it'll be kind of extra special."Of course, Capital One's The Match isn't for everyone."Look, if they had done it 15 years ago it would have been great," Rory McIlroy told reporters last week, per Ralph. "But nowadays, it's missed the mark a little bit."Justin Thomas concurred, saying in a since-deleted tweet in October that there was a "zero percent chance" he would tune in, instead saying he planned on watching football. For those intrigued, however, it should be a fascinating event. Golf fans had different responses to the experience of trying to purchase Bleacher Report's live online video stream of "The Match" between Tiger Woods and Phil Mickelson depending on when they logged in and tried to connect on Friday afternoon. Many fans who jumped in to try to watch the one-hour pre-game show ahead of the 3 p.m. Eastern match typed in their credit-card information only to have trouble maintaining their connection—or even connecting in the first place. As the technical issues mounted, officials at Turner, which was in charge of the distribution of The Match, eventually made the decision shortly before 3 p.m. to change the B/R Live login and allow viewers to receive the feed for free. Reached by Golf Digest's Dave Shedloski, Turner president David Levy, confirmed that the stream "could be accessed for free for a set period, not the whole day." RELATED: The best and worst from The Match Here is the explanation of what happened in a statement from a Turner spokesperson: "We experienced some technical issues on B/R Live that temporarily impacted user access to The Match. We've taken a number of steps to resolve the matter, with our main priority being the delivery of content to those that have purchased the PPV event." It's unclear exactly how many viewers paid for the B/N Live stream or how many watched for free. But we know for those in the later group, well, it was the rather unexpected Black Friday deal.
